

This Satellite Station combines adjustable shelf sorting with mail drop-off slots and collection bins. It is available in a range of sizes to precisely fit available space.

Satellite Stations

Hamilton Sorter Satellite Stations are increasingly used at facilities where hand delivery of mail to individual desks is either no longer cost effective or the damage to furniture by free roaming carts is problematic.

Satellite mail distribution stations can be strategically located in high traffic areas, combined with other functions such as fax stations and copy rooms, or built into walls with pass-through capabilities. In addition to serving as a distribution point, the stations can consolidate outgoing mail and other material in pick-up bins accessed through drop-slots or doors. Hamilton can also match colors and finishes of adjacent furniture and color schemes to fully integrate Satellite Stations within an overall design theme.
